

AUGUST Coaching Session

IMPLEMENTATION FOCUS

Include comprehension instruction within the daily schedule.

- Don't/Can't wait to teach reading skills until after procedures established and stamina built.
- Readers need phonics and comprehension.
- Separate the daily MINI-LESSON from daily whole-class reading experience.

CURRENT STATUS

Establish a rhythm to the daily mini-lesson.

- Approximately 15 minutes.
- The whole class is present.
- Occurs daily.
- Skill-based (i.e., tell what and teach how).

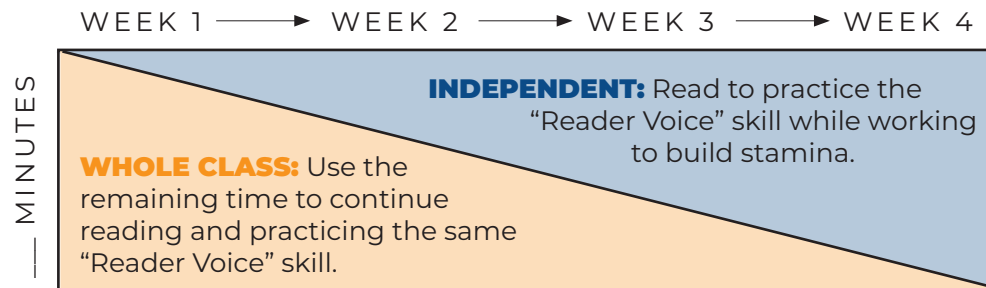

AFTER each “Reader Voices” mini-lesson, transition to You-do practice.

- Introduce & read texts, pausing to ask questions & guide students to infer answers.
- Read many different texts with students at the beginning of the year.
- Vary methods of “reading” to balance building reader stamina and consuming “required” texts.

• Students reading silently & independently.

- Teacher reads aloud; students follow along.
- Students take turns reading aloud; peers follow along.
- Students read aloud within small groups.
- Students read aloud within pairs.

Each of these is done within the teacher's presence. Pause the reading to check for general gist/ comprehension.

Make a list of the texts that you typically read/read aloud the first weeks.
